PURPOSE

The purpose of this policy is to establish guidelines to prevent incidents of violence in the workplace and establish safeguards to ensure a workplace, which is free of violence and threats of violence. Additionally, it sets forth procedures for incident response and reporting in accordance with Management Directive 205.33.

SCOPE

This policy applies to all employees, students, to all other persons on the premises subject to University control and to those engaged to further the interests of the University.

POLICY

East Stroudsburg University has a “zero tolerance” policy for any incidents of workplace violence, including threats of violence. All employees are entitled to perform their work, regardless of location, whether on the University’s premises or elsewhere, free from violence. Any employee who commits an act of violence at work against a person or property will face corrective action up to and including termination of employment. Where appropriate, the matter will be referred to legal authorities for prosecution.

To prevent workplace violence, all managers, supervisors, and employees will be made aware of the University’s policy and the steps to recognize, defuse, respond to, and report any workplace violence incident.

DEFINITIONS

Workplace: A workplace is any University owned or leased property, location where University business is conducted, or site where an employee is considered “on duty.” Commonwealth vehicles being utilized for University business are included in this definition.
Warning Signs: A warning sign is an observable behavior, which may indicate possible future threats or violence. As more warning signs are displayed, the potential for threats or violence is greater. Warning signs may include, but are not limited to overreacting, offensive or profane language, rapid speech, continual blame or excuses, being overly defensive when criticized, or repeated unusual movements such as pounding, banging, or slamming.

Inappropriate Workplace Behavior: Inappropriate behavior includes actions unacceptable for the workplace. Inappropriate workplace behavior may include attendance problems, decreased productivity, inconsistent work patterns, poor on-the-job relationships, unusual/changed behavior, personal conflicts, disruptive behavior, and fighting.

Violence: Violence connected to the workplace takes many forms. Incidents of workplace violence include, but are not limited to, threats in person, by letter or note, telephone, fax, or electronic mail; intimidation, harassment to include sexual harassment, mugging, robbery, and attempted robbery, and destruction of University property. Cases that are considered extremely serious include, but are not limited to, physical assault, rape, or murder, and bomb threats. Incidents may take place between employees; employees and students; employees and acquaintances/partners; and employees and strangers. Incidents of workplace violence may occur either at or away from the workplace. The determining factors in assessing whether an incident constitutes workplace violence are the individuals involved and the relationship of the action to the workplace; the location of the incident; and/or if the violence is as a result of University business.

State Employee Assistance Program (SEAP): A program for University employees designed to assist them and their families with substance abuse, emotional, family, financial, marital, and/or personal problems. All employees, supervisors, managers, and union stewards are encouraged to utilize the services of SEAP when personal problems first develop regardless of any job performance concerns. Policy and procedures are contained in Executive Order 1996-10, Management Directive 505.22, and Manual M505.3, all titled State Employee Assistance Program.
