VALUES DIVERSITY

Exceeds Expectations (5)

Meets Expectations (3)

Unacceptable (1)

RELATIONSHIPS WITH OTHERS

The candidate:

- Actively seeks out and engages in opportunities to work and interact with people of different backgrounds.
- Confronts use of negative stereotypes and language in interactions with others and promotes pro-social behavior.
- Serves as an advocate for the promotion of diversity (i.e., runs a fundraising event outside of school events; participates).
- Sets challenging expectations for all students* [*acting on the belief that all children can learn]. (3)
- Uses Developmentally Appropriate Activity Planning AND Individually Appropriate Planning. (3)

(Examples: uses person-first language; uses inclusion style teaching; avoids gender/orientation/cultural bias; prepares inclusive visual aids and learning activities; seeks out, reads, and plans based upon IEP - attaches IEP to Lesson Plans to support modifications; uses individualized goal setting to connect teaching and assessment; voluntarily participates in ROCKETTS, Swim and Gym, or other HPE Majors Club opportunities; uses a “process versus product” grading system.)

The candidate:

- Works constructively with others of different backgrounds and viewpoints.
- Voices discomfort with use of negative stereotypes and language by others during interactions .
- Self-identifies, in written or classroom activity assignments, areas of personal bias, and develops a plan to improve.
- Writes Developmentally Appropriate Activity Plans. (3)
- Plans for individual differences when teaching or developing plans for classes. (3)
- Believes that all children can learn (i.e., In Impact report discusses how the TC saw growth in the student for whom they made modifications; in class reflections notes how modifications impacted learning and teaching; when planning, provides extensions or alternate activities for differing ability levels of students). (3)

(Examples include: Use of students first names; Uses examples/visual aids that include diverse and representative populations or examples; Relates content taught to lives of students from different backgrounds.)

The candidate:

- Usually works only with those of similar backgrounds and viewpoints, but generally interacts with others in a polite, courteous and professional manner.
- Does not intervene when others use negative stereotypes and language in interactions with others.
- Expresses discord in class discussions or conversations about the belief that all children can learn.
- Exhibits inconsistent or inaccurate analysis of own knowledge, skills and dispositions concerning diversity.
- Expresses “tolerance” as a satisfactory level of inclusion.
- Displays bias in communication patterns or behaviors related to gender, racial, religious, sexual orientation, ability, or other populations, either inside or outside of class.
- Plans activities that challenge only or mostly the athletically elite or skillful students. (3)
