Emmy Award-winning Resolution Pictures captures the passion and courage of people engaged in a David and Goliath confrontation. They stand together, challenging a system that promotes profit over health. We meet mothers, fathers, scientists, doctors, farmers and people from all sides of the political spectrum taking a hard stand against energy extraction techniques not proven to be safe. With the oil and gas industry's thrust to expand fracking seen as a moral and civil rights issue, this provocative film documents a people's movement, a groundswell rising.

Wednesday, April 2, 7 p.m. in Stroud Room 113

The director and executive producer will be there to discuss the film, and talk about making environmental films and using them to spread awareness and activism. Arguments in favor of the economic and geopolitical advantages of fracking will be provided by Dr. Johan Eliasson, libertarian and ESU associate professor of political science. The public is encouraged to contribute to the discussion. For more information call Paul Lippert at 570-422-3482.
